

Kambiz TEHRANI received his MS and PhD from the University of Nancy (INPL), in France in 2007 and 2010 respectively. Currently, he is an associate professor at ESIGELEC (Grande Ecole d'Ingénieur in France) in the Department of Energy and Control. He is author and co-author of about 40 scientific papers (conferences, journals, book chapters and patent). He is a reviewer for IEEE Industry Electronics, he has reviewed fifty papers only for IEEE Industry Electronics since 2010. He is an IEEE member. He has supervised several PhD students and master projects. Moreover, he has several industrial and academic collaborations in France and in other countries of the world. He is head of Electrical Engineering & Electric power transmission major at ESIGELEC since 2015. His fields of research are in the power electronic systems, energy management, multilevel converter, renewables energies, smart grid and cyber physical energy system modeling and simulation.